Daily Letter. They Take the Oath of Office and Assume Their Duties.

Witnessed at the State Department by Quite a Number, Including Some Ladies—Includents at the Different Departments When the Officials Took Charge.

The organisation of President Cleveland's cabinet was completed today, when all the members took and subscribed to the coath of office prescribed by the Constitution. This ceremony took place in the beautiful diplomatic foom of the State Department with its classic hangings and sacred historic memories.

Secretary Gresham visited the department this morning and took formal possession in a most informal way. He was received by the messengers in the hallway and then by Mr. Harry Bryan in the Secretary's office. The messengers in the hallway and then by Mr. Harry Bryan in the Secretary's office. The courtesies between the incoming and outgoing officials were exchanged at the department yesterday afternoon when Mr. Gresham received his commission at the hands of Mr. Wharton and then subscribed to the cath of office. Mr. Quincy, who succeeds Mr. cath of office. Mr. Quincy, who succeeds Mr. Wharton as assistant secretary, was present at Mr. Wharton came to the department at 10:15 o'clock this morning and had a short talk with the Secretary in regard to the business of the department. The arrival of other members of the cabinet, with friends put a stop to the conference. There was a slight misunderstanding in regard to the time for the cabinet to qualify and they arrived at different times during the morning. The time fixed for the ceremony was 11:15 o'clock. THE UNINTENTIONAL SERENADE. Secretary Gresham and Postmaster General Bissell walked over together from the Arlungton to the Department this morning. It so happened that Boss McLauglin's County Demo cratic Club left the hotel on their way to the depot about the same time, and as the two high officials passed their line they were greeted with the significant strains of "I Want a Situation," given with the full strength of the large band that accompanied the Brooklyn stalwarts. It was not intended for the benefit of the Cabinet minister who happened not to be recognized by the organization, but was accepted as an intentional serenade to them by other persons who knew them.

tional serenade to them by other persons who knew them.

Secretary Carlisle, Secretary Morton and Secretary Smith joined the other two ministers at the State Department soon after 10 o'clock, and were followed quickly by Secretary Herbert and Attorney General Olney. They occupied the Secretary's office.

In the corridor outside were gathered several Congressmen, a knot of newspaper men and a few visitors, who were attracted there by the presence of the others. Secretary Smith came out into the hall several times to meet friends from his own state who had sent in for him.

A PARTY OF LADIES.

A PARTY OF LADIES. Secretary Lamont was the last of the cabinet to arrive. He came about 11 o'clock and was ccompanied by a large party of ladies and genaccompanied by a large party of ladies and gentlemen, including Mrs. Lamont, Mrs. Perrine, Gen. Tracy and Miss Caggar of Albany, Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt of New York, Mr. R. W. Gilder, Miss Saunders, of New York and Col. J. M. Wilson of the army. They were ushered into the diplomatic room at once and were followed immediately by all those previously assembled in the secretary's office and Representatives Bynum and Martin of Indiana, Representative Cummings of New York, National Committeeman Smalley, Assistant Secretary Adee, Mr. John T. Glenn of Georgia, Mr. John G. Parker of New York and Georgia, Mr. John G. Parker of New York and Representatives Cabiness, Tait and Maddox, Gen. Flagler, Capt. Smith and Capt. Shaler of the ordnance department.

Nothing now remained but to await the arrival of Mr. Justice Field of the Supreme Court, who had been requested to administer the prescribed oath of office. He did not keep them waiting long, arriving promptly on the his duty. He took his stand at the head of the large shony table with the cabinet officers at his right and left with the remainder of the crowd standing in a circle behind them. Secretary Gresham, who had already qualified, took a position just behind Justice Field.

The oath was administered first to Secretary Carliele and to Secretary Lamont, Smith, Herbert, Olney, Bissell and Morton in the order named. The Bible used was one bought by Secretary Morton, who remarked that he intended it as a gift to his grandchild as a mement of the occasion.

Judge Field read the oath from a printed department. They were received informally by Private Secretary Miller and Lieut. Dapray, Secretary Elkins' military aid.

The Secretary asked for Assistant Secretary Grant, and when that gentleman appeared the two retired to one of the inner offices and had a brief conference about the business of the department. Secretary Lamont told a Stan reporter this afternoon that he would receive the officers of the department tomorrow morning. He has not yet selected his private secretary, but Mr. Seager will act in that capacity temporarily.

It is said that Gen. Underwood of Kentucky will succeed Gen. Grant as assistant secretary mento of the occasion.

Judge Field read the oath from a printed form drawn up for the signature of each member, and repeated the solemn words in an impressive voice somewhat broken will succeed Gen. Grant as assistant secretary of war.

Smith, Herbert and Bissell were sworn they kissed the book. The others simply bowed their heads in aclasted but a few minutes. At its close Justice Field congratulated the new officials, and his example was then followed by all the others present.

After a few minutes spent in general conversation the party broke up, the cabinet officers repairing to their respective departments.

Mr. Carliele finds himself confronted with a great responsibility to maintain the gold basis and a man of less ability might find the task a very difficult one.

It is probable that before he has been two days in his office he will find it necessary to choose between issuing bonds and trenching upon the gold reserve.

"The fact is," he added, "that the deman for gold is perfectly regular. It is not speculative. It is the natural demand, foreign countries needing the gold. The only thing artificial or speculative in the situation was the effort made to keep the gold here. Our bankers borrowed $10,000,000 of gold to keep it here. That, of course, was to keep the market steady and not to meet business demands. However, there is nearly $500,000,000 of gold in this country, the public mind is comparatively easy and I have no doubt that Mr. Carlisle will be able to put himself in a position to meet all demands for gold."
